THE DEPARTMENT OF MEDICAL EDUCATION

Essentials of Problem-Based Learning: Facilitator Training, Curriculum Design, Problem Construction and Student Assessment June 16-19, 2009 Springfield, Illinois

This workshop combines training in the essential faculty skills for problem-based learning, including how to design a problem-based curriculum and draft the problems central to it, how to facilitate small groups and how to assess students. By interweaving the skills sessions, participants will be able to develop their facilitating skills while tutoring the problems they are developing for their own curriculum. We anticipate that participants will have the same wide range of academic disciplines, educational focus and cultural background as we have had in other workshops, making for an exciting sharing of problem-development ideas and institutional challenges.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Each Participant will be able to:

1. Articulate the principles of problem-based learning.
2. Design a problem-based curriculum.
3. Construct 3 problems to be used in a problem-based curriculum.
4. Facilitate a problem-based small group.
5. Design a performance based assessment system.

FACULTY

Debra Klamen, M.D., M.H.P.E.

Debra L. Klamen, M.D., M.H.P.E., F.A.P.A. is Professor and Chair of the Department of Medical Education at SIU School of Medicine. She is also the Associate Dean for Education and Curriculum. She completed a Masters of Health Professional Education at the University of Illinois at Chicago in 1998. Dr. Klamen has written numerous articles on medical school education, focusing on assessment and educational innovation.

Linda Distlehorst, Ph.D.

Linda Distlehorst has guided faculty through the educational change process and is well-versed in both the rewards and the challenges in institutional change. In addition to this, she has a number of years of experience in both problem-design/curriculum development and tutor training. Dr. Distlehorst's background includes not only medical education but also secondary education. She previously served as Associate Dean for the Office of Education and Curriculum.

Nicole Roberts, Ph.D.

Nicole Roberts joined the faculty of SIU School of Medicine with a background in all levels of medical education, from undergraduate to graduate to continuing. She has also taught in public schools and in higher education. At SIU, she serves as the Director of the Academy for Scholarship in Education, and as an Assistant Professor in the Medical Education department. Her areas of emphasis are faculty development and medical education research.

CONTINUING MEDICAL EDUCATION

Southern Illinois University School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Education (ACCME) to sponsor continuing medical education for physicians. The SIU School of Medicine designates this educational activity for a maximum of 31.5 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should only claim credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.
